

As murder in Britain becomes ever more frequent and foul, we say...

BRING BACK THE DEATH PENALTY!

MURDER in Britain increases at a sickening rate, not only in terms of statistics but, seemingly, also in the horrific nature of the crimes taking place. The constant appeasement by the Government of Irish Republican elements has not brought about any abatement in the terrorist attacks being made. In the meantime, hardly a day seems to go by when we do not hear of some revolting killings, often preceded by sexual assaults, on people of all ages, including the very young and the very old.

In response to this, all we have had from the present Government is pious speeches and pompous announcements of new measures and procedures, all designed to create an image of 'toughness' and a sense of 'urgency' but, in effect, amounting to the same old inaction and paralysis. Meanwhile the murderer continues to thrive and prosper.

Today, Britain's jails are harbouring thousands of murderers, including some of the most sub-human kind like the killers of little children and old ladies. They are being kept in warmth and comfort. They do not lack adequate food. They are allowed regularly to watch TV and engage in other leisured pursuits. The cost to the taxpayer of all willing to gun them down — since the sentence they are likely to receive for such murders will probably not be that much greater than they would receive for the robberies alone, if caught!

PARLIAMENT FAILS THE NATION

In the face of this escalation of murder, our politicians in Westminster have again and again failed in their duty to this nation by rejecting calls for the death penalty to be restored. Motions have several times been put before the House of Commons demanding the return of capital punishment. Each time they have been decisively defeated.

And this is despite the fact that opinion polls have shown that between 80 and 85 per-cent of the British public favour the return of the death penalty.

Likewise, the politicians in parliament have rejected all calls for a national referendum on this burning issue. While ever claiming that they are there as the 'people's representatives', they have consistently refused to let the people speak and assert their will.

They have, in other words, demonstrated the fraudulence of the system they call 'democracy' — on this as well as other issues, like immigration and abortion, for instance.

WEAK TORIES

What is particularly interesting about all this is that these rejections of capital punishment by parliament have, again and again, occurred during a time of Tory Government, when in fact the Tories have had a thumping majority in the House of Commons.

This has happened because, not only have nearly all the Labour and other Opposition MPs voted against the motion, but a substantial number of Conservatives have as well!

And these latter have included the present Home Secretary, Douglas Hurd, whom Mrs. Thatcher appointed to conduct a campaign to restore 'law and order'!

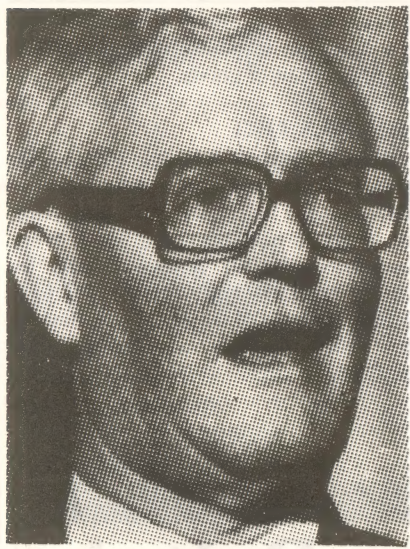

Generally speaking, in their whole approach to murder, as well as to other forms of crime, the Tories have demonstrated themselves, over their ten years of government, to be utterly pathetic. Their inability to mobilise in parliament sufficient number of their own members to vote for the death penalty is merely a manifestation of their all-round weakness in coping with the growing lawlessness and anarchy now running rampant throughout Britain.

OUR COMMITMENT

And many of these creatures have the prospect that, if they keep their noses clean while in prison, they may qualify in a few years for parole, which will let them loose again on society still with plenty of their lives remaining before them.

THE TORIES AND THE MILITARY MANPOWER SHORTAGE

ELSEWHERE on this page, we mention the 'new look' planned for Britain's armed forces by the Government. In particular, a special recruiting pitch is to be made for more women and more 'ethnics'. The former are to be given what have always been, and many think should remain, male roles.

The excuses for these moves are, firstly, that the birthrate among white native Britons has fallen, so that there are fewer white males around to do the job of defending our country. Secondly, it seems that those white males there are are no longer so willing to volunteer. Hence, these new types of recruit are to be pulled in to make up the numbers.

When there are elections to be fought, the Tories love to strut the stage as 'champions' of national defence. But in fact it never occurs to them to lift a finger against these nationally lethal trends which strike at the very foundations of Britain's ability to defend herself.

They never dream of taking steps to promote the white birthrate. This of course would be 'racism', and 'racism' is something which the Tories, just as much as the Labour, SLD or SDP parties, avoid the way the Devil shuns holy water.

Nor will they do anything whatsoever to set about encouraging a proper military spirit in our young manhood. As always, they can think of nothing better to do than fall in with whatever trends happen to exist in society at large, no matter how fatal to the nation.

So, by Tory reasoning, if great numbers of Britain's young men are turning into degenerate wimps and drunken louts ripe for anarchy, and who are no longer willing to volunteer in sufficient numbers for military service, we are supposed to regard that as 'just too bad'. We are expected to accept it as a fact to be lived with and, at the most, worked around by whatever stop-gap measures can be found.

Above all, we must never, in the Tory view, use the authority and power of government to overcome the degenerative trends that have taken hold of many of our youth. The suggestion that ALL young men should be required to spend a time serving in the armed forces of their country, for example, is regarded by the Tories and others as anathema — for this would be to interfere with the sacred principles of 'freedom' as laid down by Mrs. Thatcher.

Not surprisingly, the stop-gap measures, which have resulted from the abdication of the true duties of government, fit in neatly with the hobby horses of the political left.

British manhood is in decay. The Tory Government has zero will to do anything about this. Its solution? Fill the British armed forces with women and Blacks. Thus another victory for feminism and multi-racialism.

Of course, this is no solution. At the end of the day, women can no more be a substitute for men than is possible vice-versa. Neither can Blacks be substitutes for Whites in Britain's armed services, and it is a snare and a delusion to try to use them as such.

If we want our country to be properly defended, we can do

WHAT ARE THEY DOING TO OUR ARMY?

THE MEN in the picture on the right, with the sheepish expressions, lined up for inspection by the lady officer in charge of them, are in fact British soldiers! They are part of the detachment supplied by Mrs. Thatcher to the United Nations force currently in 'Namibia' (whose proper name is South West Africa) to supervise the evacuation of the South African Army from the territory, so that it can be handed over to the rule of black communists belonging to the SWAPO terrorist organisation, which has been spreading mayhem in the country for the past couple of decades.

Here, Lieutenant 'Pippa' Owens is adjusting one soldier's beret — which, incidentally, is the pale blue headgear of the United Nations, donned by all troops of the UN force, including the British, to perform this role of dishonour.

It is not recorded whether Pippa has also subjected her men to a fingernail inspection or checked to make sure they had scrubbed their knees that morning.

No doubt most of them had thought that schoolmarm supervision of this kind was something they had left behind them when they grew out of kindergarten — but not so!

This regime of henpecking will very likely become widespread in the 'new-look' British armed forces for which Mrs. Thatcher's Defence Secretary George Younger has plans — and lady officers are only one part of these plans. Not only are women to be more and more integrated into the forces on the same terms as men, as in the US forces, but also, once gain as with the Americans, more and more 'ethnic minority' members are to be recruited — with the same predictable results.

NO FIGHTING FORCE

So what we are seemingly to end up with is an army which is not so much a fighting force as a career ladder for yuppies and women's libbers, and a job creation programme for unemployed inner-city youths. So far, the Ministry of Defence does not seem to have come up with any specific plans for a 'gay' contingent too, so that every shade of modern-day trendiness can be represented. But maybe they're working on it. After all, surely queers and bulldykes have to be given their 'equal opportunities' as well.

At the moment the British Army still contains plenty of good white men. But maybe Mr. Younger does not consider that it is yet quite the kind of instrument that is going to be required for the future.

His boss, Mrs. Thatcher, has, after all, been putting quite a lot into promoting the aims of the new one-world order in Southern Africa just lately — of which her contribution to liquidating white civilisation in South West Africa is only one small element. It must be remembered that British Army instructors have been working for some time training the communist forces of Mozambique in order to render them more efficient in their border attacks on the South African Republic.

It seems that these kinds of deployment, rather than the defence of Britain and her interests around the world, now represent the role our Prime Minister sees for our armed forces in the future.

Maybe this is the reason why white manhood now has to be relegated and put down in the British Army. At the end of the day, no red-blooded white man is going to relish the new tasks likely to be put on him by his political masters in the pursuit of such aims.

On the other hand, perhaps we are getting it all wrong. Maybe the planned new look to the British Army is all part of some subtle and deep-laid strategy for confounding Britain's prospective enemies. Perhaps the Ministry of Defence has hit on the idea that by fielding an army such as ours may end up by looking like we can get the enemy to collapse and die laughing!

POLYGLOT UNITS

Certainly, when it comes to exposing Britain's forces to ridicule, and worse, the exercise in SWA shows some promise for the future. Very shortly, the British contingent there is to be joined by polyglot units from as far afield as Finland, Kenya and Malaysia, with the whole UN show to be under the command of an Indian, General Prem Chand. Thus our troops can be exhibited to the eyes of the world scurrying around in their pretty blue berets at the orders of the likes of Lt. Pippa, so as to do the bidding of their new Third World chieftains and overlords in bringing down their fellow Whites wherever in the world the latter may be so impertinent as to fail to fall exactly into line with the new world order that is planned for them.

As far as a British presence in South West Africa is concerned, this could be justified only for one purpose — to help the South Africans wipe out SWAPO, should they recover their own sanity and determine to hang on to this territory, in which they and their German predecessors have spent the last century raising civilisation from a primitive wilderness.

But that would mean not only that

Britain had a different type of armed forces but also that she had different types of rulers giving them their orders.

Britain's trade gap: new bombshell

THE £5 BILLION LAWSON DIDN'T TELL US ABOUT

A NEW BOMBSHELL has burst in the ongoing saga of Britain's yawning trade deficit.

Chancellor Nigel Lawson obviously cannot bluff his way around the £16.5 billion or so by which Britain is in debt to foreigners on her international trade balance. But what he has so far kept mum about is an additional £5 billion deficit on our trade balance in 'invisibles', and specifically on the very invisibles that he and the Tories have spent so many years trying to persuade us would continue to bring some sort of benefit to Britain, even after Tory policies had wiped out our own home-grown industries.

Remember how, during the phony pre-election 'boom' of two or three years ago, Lawson and his fellow Tories in parliament and the press were assuring us that the free movement of capital across national frontiers without limit would help Britain, in the words of one Tory financial columnist, to "buy up the rest of the world"? Remember how we were told that this would give us a 'nice little earner' in terms of interest on foreign investments with which to pay for all our imports of foreign manufactures in the future?

FOREIGNERS BUYING UP BRITAIN

Well, now it seems that there is one really serious flaw in this new regime of freely flitting international money. Whilst British investment capital has certainly been free to move abroad, foreign capital has been at least as free to move to Britain, buying up one British firm after another or simply sitting in British bank accounts making interest for its owners. It now turns out that in fact Britain has failed to buy up as valuable a slice of the rest of the world as the rest of the world has of us!

The result?

Foreigners are taking out of Britain, in the form of interest on their loans and investments, a good bit more than British investment abroad is earning for this country.

According to figures in the Central Statistical Office's quarterly balance of payments report, British banks paid out £35.7 billion in interest to overseas investors last year. Meanwhile, the interest derived from our own investments overseas was £32.9 billion — a shortfall of £2.8 billion.

In addition, British business had to pay a further £2.5 billion to foreign banks. Then, on top of this, the Government had a liability to the same foreign interests of some £376 million.

In all, Britain was left owing foreigners more than £5.3 billion.

COOKING THE BOOKS

Director of the Institute of Applied Economics at Cambridge, Professor Wynne Godley, put Britain's trade and finance predicament in a nutshell: "There are three forms of investments: physical assets, portfolio investment and 'hot money' — footloose money that comes in and stays in a bank account amassing interest. We are failing to record interest payments which could put the true annual deficit at more than £21 billion a year."

"That is more than 4 per-cent of gross domestic product — more than in the oil crisis of 1974 — and if it remains at that level there will be a Sterling crisis within the next two years."

So it turns out that Britain is not going to get the 'something for nothing' the Tories promised the electorate as British manufacturing was being driven to the wall and replaced by the 'financial services sector'. It seems after all that the activities of the City in moving money all over the world are no substitute for

LAWSON
Trying to pull the wool over our eyes having a REAL national economy of our own based on technology, industry and the production of goods.

THE WAY OUT

There is only one way that Britain can get out of her pickle of massive foreign indebtedness. She must stop importing her needs in manufactured goods from foreigners. British industry must be rebuilt behind trade barriers which exclude imports of foreign goods that we are quite capable of making for ourselves.

CAR DEAL IS CLINCHED AND MEANS 6,000 JOBS

Powerhouse Britain wins Toyota plant

SPOOFING THE PEOPLE

This is a reproduction of a typical one of the 'hurrah!' headlines in the Tory press (in this case The Daily Mail of April 19th) greeting with great acclaim the decision of the Toyota car firm of Japan to set up a new plant in Britain, at an airfield near Derby. This selection of Britain by the Japs is heralded as a compliment to our country's economic performance (and by implication to the Tory Government); but in fact it is due to nothing more than the Japs knowing that we are a softer touch than any other Europeans and that they will get bigger help from the British Government than from any other. What the report of this new investment does not mention is it will eventually mean far more money going out of Britain than coming in. Toyota is not making its investment out of love for us; it is doing so for its own profit. This profit is going to be added to the huge sums now leaving this country and increasing our balance-of-payments deficit. As for the '6,000 new jobs' that the deal is supposed to create, this is a spoof; the cars made at the Derby plant will take sales (and jobs) away from other car makers in Britain. On the other hand, we could create many times more new jobs for car workers by shutting out imports.

LORD MACKAY, Mrs. Thatcher's controversial appointee as Lord Chancellor, has recently indicated his intention to recruit more black and Asian judges to preside over Britain's courts.

In a speech to a conference organised by the National Association for the Care and Resettlement of Offenders, Lord Mackay said that he was determined to "improve the ratio of ethnic minority JPs until it reflects the make-up of society."

The latest available figures reveal that, although the percentage of non-white magistrates appointed in England and Wales rose from 1.8 in 1980 to 4.8 in 1986, in 1987 there were still only 500 out of 27,730 (1.92 percent). Lord Mackay made his intentions clear last year when he appointed Britain's first black QCs, John Roberts and Leonard Woodley. His reforms of the legal profession are also aimed at producing more black lawyers.

Lord Mackay's recent initiatives have been welcomed by Paul Boateng, the notorious black solicitor and Labour MP for Brent South, who has said: "It is essential that there is the broadest representation at all levels from court officials to judges, if we are to maintain confidence in our system of justice."

It is quite clear from this news that what Lord Mackay is aiming at is 'positive discrimination' in favour of non-white lawyers and judges, or, as it is called in America, 'affirmative action', aimed at promoting blacks to jobs irrespective of qualification or merit but solely in accordance with their proportions in the population.

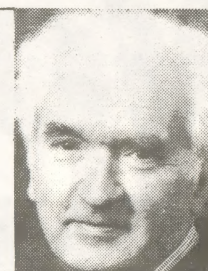

Lord Mackay is, in other words, quite prepared to see the standards in Britain's legal profession slump in order that he may make his contribution to the building of the 'multiracial society' and, in the process, ingratiate himself with the ethnic minority lobby, of which Boateng is one of the noisiest spokesmen.

Lord Mackay is just one more dripping 'wet' to be appointed to a top post by Mrs. Thatcher, the Premier whose supporters have given her the title of the 'Iron Lady' and whom the mass media like to portray as a right-wing 'hard-liner'.

We in this paper believe that judges and magistrates in Britain should be appointed on merit and ability alone, not elevated to the bench as a concession to the ethnic minorities. We therefore believe that the Lord Chancellor's plans for black and Asian judges are appalling. And equally appalling is the fact that Mrs. Thatcher appointed such a groveller in the first place.

LORD MACKAY
Groveling to the ethnic minorities

"WE SHOULD BREAK BRITAIN'S LAWS," SAYS ASIAN

MOSLEMS who want to see a ban placed on Salman Rushdie's book The Satanic Verses should be prepared to break the laws of this country to press their point home and persuade the Government to take action.

This was the view of a leading Moslem, Dr. Kalim Siddiqui, in a speech given at a conference organised in London by the Moslem Institute.

To frequent cries of "Rushdie must die!" and "Ban the book!" Dr. Siddiqui criticised the Government's handling of the Rushdie affair and told Moslems to follow the example of the Suffragettes and other groups that have broken the law in order to get it changed.

Dr. Siddiqui said that Moslems had two alternatives: to accept the book or "to take on the Government, Opposition, the media and even the police and judiciary in a prolonged campaign that may at times amount to confrontation and open conflict."

Well, the people of this country cannot say they haven't been warned! This latest piece of Asian arrogance is in fact hardly surprising in view of the timid way that Government ministers have dealt with the Rushdie controversy so far. Instead of telling Moslems that either they obey the laws of this country — or else! our politicians have bent over backwards to stress their 'understanding' of the anger of the Moslems and not so much ordered as pleaded with them not to commit criminal acts in pursuit of their grievance.

This paper has no axe to grind on behalf of Salman Rushdie. He should not be in this country but in India, where he comes from. What happens to his rather second-rate book is a matter of supreme indifference to us.

But here a principle is at stake which

EFFIGY BURNED
This picture shows a model of the head of Salman Rushdie, being subjected to a ritual burning during a demonstration of fanatical Moslems in Peterborough in March. Moslems have turned out in their thousands in many British towns and cities agitating for Rushdie's book to be banned is far important than Rushdie or The Satanic Verses. The principle is that no foreigners, of whatever religious persuasion or devoutness, should be telling us what the law should be in our country.

WHEN IN ROME...

There is an old saying: "When in Rome, do as the Romans do." That should hold good for the several millions of immigrants who have been pleased to settle in Britain.

We believe that a time is going to come when these newcomers and their offspring will have to leave this country and go back to their lands of origin. But until that happy day dawns, and as long as the newcomers are here, they should damned well obey our laws and accept our traditions and conventions, not threaten violence — as Dr. Siddiqui quite obviously was doing — if we do not oblige them by changing the law to suit their demands.

Dr. Siddiqui is a very militant Moslem. He is quite entitled to be that — we have no quarrel with Moslems as such; on the contrary, we respect their right to their own faith.

But Britain is not a Moslem country. There are vast areas of the world where the Moslem religion is the established one. The likes of Dr. Siddiqui should go and live there and practise their faith to their heart's content.

And they should leave us British to live in peace, under our own laws and our own customs.

'DISILLUSIONED' WRITES...

"...Obviously some of the hopes of mutual tolerance have not been fulfilled. In retrospect, we might have been more cautious about allowing the creation in the 1950s of substantial Moslem communities here..."

— Roy Jenkins, former Labour Home Secretary, leading architect of the multi-racial society and the Race Relations Act and failed leader of the SDP, writing in The Independent magazine, on March 4th 1989, on the death threats from Moslems in Britain over the Rushdie affair.

You can say that again, Roy!

Still they come in

ON THE ADMISSION of the Home Office, 49,000 people were accepted for settlement in the UK in 1988, 3,000 more than in 1987. The number, after going down for a while, is going up again. Add to this the 'illegals' and the newly born, and how many more 'ethnic minorities' it means is anyone's guess!

Why does Chief Rabbi back Asians on book-banning?

NO LESS a figure than the Jewish Chief Rabbi in Britain, Dr. Immanuel Jakobovits, recently raised to the peerage by the Government, has lent his weight to recent Moslem agitation for the banning of Salman Rushdie's novel The Satanic Verses, and the extension of the law so as to silence free speech where that might offend Moslem religious sensibilities.

In a letter to The Times, Lord Jakobovits revealed that as long ago as last October he was approached for his backing in the campaign, being planned even then, against the Rushdie novel. The Chairman of a body calling itself the 'Islamic Society for the Promotion of Religious Tolerance in the United Kingdom' (sic!) sought his support for the forthcoming protest, which the Chief Rabbi "readily agreed" to give, informing the Chairman of the Islamic Society that he disapproved of the "falsification of established historical records," as well as offence being caused to the religious feelings of "countless citizens."

Whilst deploring the Ayatollah Khomeini's death threats against Rushdie, Lord Jakobovits agreed with Moslem demands for an extension of laws banning certain forms of free speech in Britain. Discounting any strengthening of the blasphemy legislation, he suggested instead that Britain should pioneer new laws prohibiting "the publication of anything likely to inflame, through obscene defamation, the feelings or beliefs of any section of society."

Such laws further limiting free speech, the Chief Rabbi speculated, could be added to those already on the statute book prohibiting "incitement of race hatred." Other nations might then follow suit, and such a ban might then be incorporated into some form of international agreement.

The Chief Rabbi's letter will fuel speculation that there is some kind of Zionist angle in the Moslem mass hysteria against the Rushdie novel. It has arisen at a most opportune moment for deflecting Moslem hostility away from the State of Israel during a period when the latter has openly exposed itself by its brutal repressions of the Palestinians, and when PLO leader Yasser Arafat has wrong-footed the Israeli leaders with his own diplomatic approach involving the renunciation of terrorism.

Of one thing we can be quite certain. This is that in the longer term the powerful world Zionist lobby sees the large Moslem elements now

LORD JAKOBOVITS
No doubt he has other kinds of books in mind for banning besides the Rushdie one!

entrenching themselves in Britain, France, Germany and other western lands, with the backing of those countries' politicians, as a stalking horse for its own aims and ambitions. In particular, if Moslem pressures can be used to get these politicians to put new laws into effect further restricting the freedom of speech of ordinary Britons, Frenchmen and Germans in any matters where minorities might find their opinions 'offensive', then the Zionists themselves would potentially be able to jump on this bandwagon too.

Any Gentile questioning, for example, the historical claims which the International Zionist lobby has used to legitimise the State of Israel, and its position in the modern world, might be prosecuted on the pretext of "causing offence" to a "section of society" (in this case the Jews). This could be done without regard for the truth of such criticisms.

Speaking for ourselves, we can be quite sure that the Chief Rabbi, in joining in the clamour for the banning of the Rushdie book, does not have Moslem concerns primarily in mind. If that book can be banned, what others may then be banned? Any, indeed, to which the likes of the Chief Rabbi object. At least we cannot say that we have not been warned!

Multi-racialism being promoted by lies and deceit

ONE THING notable about the promoters of the multi-racial society in Britain is their utter disregard for the truth. This was demonstrated particularly strongly in a TV programme broadcast in February.

The programme was Sir Harry Secombe's Highway, shown early on Sunday evenings. In the February 12th edition, the programme visited Bedford. Sir Harry candidly admitted that that town had been chosen because of its strong 'multi-racial' flavour. In the event, every single item in the broadcast featured some ethnic minority group — leading the viewers to wonder whether in fact there were any native British in Bedford! Indeed, it was subsequently reported in the Bedford Times that many local people had been greatly angered by the programme, which totally ignored the British majority in the town as if it did not exist.

The final item in the programme featured what was presented as the choir of St. Thomas More School, which had earned a high reputation for the quality of its singing and won a recent prize at the Porthcawl eisteddfod.

What the TV viewers saw was a choir with several black members, with some of these placed in prominence near to Sir Harry as he sung with them. No doubt the intention was to persuade the public that the 'multi-racial' nature of the choir had been one of the causes of its high standard of singing.

BOGUS CHORISTERS

What the viewers were not told was that the young Blacks shown in the broadcast were not real members of the choir at all!

They had simply been drafted into the picture so as to fit in with the programme makers' policy of making the broadcast 'multi-racial'. The real choir of St. Thomas More School is in fact all white, and this was the choir which made the sound recording used in the programme. The coloured element were brought in as 'extras' for the purpose of the photograph.

An advance warning of the intentions behind this broadcast was given in the February issue of Spearhead magazine. As a result of the Spearhead report, some readers got in touch with both the Highway TV team and the school and challenged them on this piece of deceit. Indignant denials were issued by both parties, who claimed that the multi-racial choir filmed was in fact the real choir.

We can only say that we know that this is not true. We have an inside source of information of a highly reliable nature which establishes quite clearly that the introduction of the black youngsters into the choir was just a spoof, intended to mislead the viewers. Clearly, the spoof had the complicity, not only of the makers of the programme from Sir Harry Secombe down, but also of members of the staff of the school. This is not particularly surprising, because multi-racialist 'liberals', whether they work in TV or the teaching profession, are much of a common breed — their disregard for the virtue of honesty is universal.

Just how many other presentations put on by TV to demonstrate the 'success' of the multi-racial society are similar frauds we cannot know but can only guess from our knowledge of the mentality of those who operate the 'race relations' industry and its many supporting lobbies. In this case, those responsible have egg on their faces because they broke the 11th Commandment — they got found out!

SPOOF BY T.V. CAMERA
Sir Harry Secombe is seen here singing with what appears to be a multi-racial choir. What the viewers were not told was that black youngsters had been conscripted into the choir from outside, so as to create this illusion. In fact the true choir whose voices were recorded on the sound-track is all-white!

Now how about 'Glasnost' for Britain?

CONTRARY TO WHAT MRS. THATCHER MAY SAY, WE DO NOT HAVE AN 'OPEN SOCIETY' IN THIS COUNTRY

WHEN Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev was Mrs. Thatcher's guest last month, our Premier lost no time in urging him to do more to liberate Russia's dissidents and to speed up the process of 'Glasnost', whereby the Soviet Union may become a more 'open' society, with no topic of debate forbidden.

But do we really have an open society in Mrs. Thatcher's Britain? Is a free public debate allowed over every issue of national importance? Do the holders of all political viewpoints have the right of free expression?

Before you try to answer these questions, ask yourself another: have you ever seen this paper, British Nationalist, on sale in a newsagents?

If, as is almost certain, your answer to that last question is a negative one, you may proceed to another question: if not, why not?

If you are unclear about the answer, we will tell you. An unofficial censorship operates throughout the entire trade of literature distribution in this country. The censorship does not exist by government decree — no government would be honest enough to carry out such a measure! The censorship exists because those engaged in the trade in question know very well that, if they did stock and sell certain types of publications, pressures would be applied against them which would probably lead to their financial ruin.

What 'certain types' of publication, you may ask? We'll tell you: publications which support national freedom and sovereignty, which oppose immigration and the multi-racial society, which speak frankly and openly about international finance, which are prepared at times to be critical of Jewish interests, which challenge certain 'orthodox' views of modern history.

Firms which partake in the handling of such publications will suddenly find themselves losing customers and important contracts. If they are newspapers which earn a large income through advertising, they will find that certain of their advertisers will have gone elsewhere. Or such firms may find that they are experiencing great difficulty in getting financial credit in the way they did in the past. If they are shopkeepers, they are likely to find their shops picketed by left-wing mobs and quite likely that their windows have been smashed as well. Alternatively, their employees may be called out on strike by their union.

Do such things really happen in good old 'democratic' Britain? Yes, they do!

This is why your only chance of being able to read this paper, or its stablemate Spearhead, is (a) to be a subscriber; (b) to buy it on a street corner from a BNP sales team; or (c) to buy it from a similar sales team on your doorstep.

BOOK BOYCOTT

Last year the leader of the British National Party John Tyndall published his book The Eleventh Hour, which gave a comprehensive exposition of the case for the BNP and for British Nationalism. It tackled all the 'taboo' subjects mentioned earlier. Have you seen that book on the shelves of W.H. Smith's and other bookshops?

You will not have done because the same 'pressures' operating through the bookselling trade have ensured that the book will not be stocked or sold.

Reviewer's copies of the book were sent, on its publication, to every national newspaper and every major provincial paper also. Despite the many testimonies received from around the world that the book has outstanding merit, not one such paper even printed a review!

And that of course is another reason why the major booksellers would not buy copies — a book that has not had reviews is not likely to be asked for.

Just how John Tyndall came to write The Eleventh Hour should be a matter of interest. He was only able to find the time for such a large-scale exercise because he was in prison!

In prison? Yes, in prison — but not for committing any normal crime, only for writing and publishing political opinions that were judged in a court to have broken the law.

What, here in Britain? Yes, here in Britain! Mr. Tyndall in fact wrote and published opinions about the different capacities of different races, and he expressed the view that these different capacities made the building of a successful multi-racial society impossible. The court ruled that he had offended against a section of the Public Order Act dealing with 'race relations'. He was given a year's imprisonment, later reduced on appeal to six months.

And our editor John Morse was jailed with Tyndall at the same time and for the same 'crimes'.

CENSORSHIP ON RACE

Even a Tory peer, Lord Reay, recently said in the House of Lords that there seemed to be an organised 'cover-up' over the matter of statistics of black criminals in this country. Many newspapers seemed reluctant to let their

SENT TO PRISON
Our Editor John Morse (above) was given a four-month sentence in 1986 for speaking his mind on race and immigration readers know the facts about such statistics, and Government officials, as well as senior police officers, seemed equally reluctant to talk about them.

One of the more outspoken Fleet Street journalists, Sunday Telegraph editor Peregrine Worsthorne recently wrote:

"...Freedom of the press to publish official secrets — that must be permitted, since it is in the public interest. But on no account must the press be free to say or write anything that might upset good race relations, since that would be against the public interest..."

This was echoed by journalist Paul Johnson, who, writing in The Spectator on the 21st November 1987, said:

"...I think it can be truthfully said that

THE PRIME MINISTER
Seen here greeting Soviet leader Gorbachev, she lectures to him and the rest of the world about 'freedom' and 'human rights'. In the meantime her own dissidents get gagged and jailed no newspaper now dares to publish articles which discuss Britain's race problems frankly. Legal censorship by the Race Relations Industry is reinforced by such bodies as the Press Council, the NUJ and other unions, as well of course by Labour-controlled local authorities."

Johnson went on to speak of subjects which would stand no chance of being freely discussed on television, with a fair hearing being given to a viewpoint which did not meet with liberal-establishment approval. Giving some examples of themes which would not be permitted to be shown, he said:

"Nor would a play which illustrated the role of homosexuals in spreading AIDS, or the cruelty and intolerance often practised by social workers, or the tricks and frauds of a left-wing 'investigative journalist', or the arguments in favour of such permissive hate-subjects as capital punishment or foxhunting. Imagine a play putting, say, the ordinary White South African in a good light. It might be written with the skill of Shakespeare but it would not get a showing on British television."

MEETING HALL BAN

The same kind of censorship is practised when it comes to the hire of premises to political groups for the holding of meetings. Privately-owned meeting halls are only very rarely likely ever to be available to political groups where the owners fear an outbreak of disorder and the damage to their premises. Of course, such disorder can easily be 'arranged' by those who oppose the groups in question, so that, in effect, there can be — and there is — a nationwide ban on such groups when it comes to hiring private premises.

This makes it all the more essential that publicly-owned meeting halls, that is to say halls owned by local authorities, are made available to all political groups, of whatever complexion — if we are to be able to claim that such a thing as freedom of assembly exists in this country.

But in fact no such freedom of assembly exists!

Labour-controlled councils up and down Britain have brazenly announced that they refuse to hire any municipally-owned halls to 'racists' or 'fascists' (that is, anyone designated by these councils as falling within those categories, whether justifiably or not).

Conservative-controlled local authorities are a little more subtle. They do not actually acknowledge publicly that they operate a ban on any political groups, but it has been found that when certain groups do make an application for the hire of council-owned premises in Conservative-controlled areas they only very rarely manage to get their applications accepted, and in many cases where there is acceptance the bookings are subsequently cancelled after certain 'pressures' are applied. Usually the pretext is the threat of disorder and damage to premises — though of course such a threat comes, not from the group wishing to hold the meeting, but from those groups opposed to it.

Sometimes Conservative councils find another get-out. Instead of banning such groups from using their halls, they say that the halls can be hired — but only if the groups in question pay a whacking insurance premium to cover possible damage by opponents. The expense of the premium totally rules out the booking, so that a ban on the hire of the hall effectively exists, even if it is not acknowledged officially.

By these means, freedom of assembly for certain types of political group in this country has, in realistic terms, been brought to an end.

LET'S HAVE DONE WITH THE HYPOCRISY

So let's have done with all the hypocrisy and the humbug. Britain is not an 'open' society, not a 'free' society. In Britain there is a censorship of certain 'unapproved' opinions and a clampdown on the discussion of certain 'taboo' subjects, just as there has been for years in Soviet Russia. Indeed, it is quite possible that today, with the greater freedom of debate that is developing in Russia under Gorbachev, that country is in fact a freer one than our own!

Of course, just as in Russia the lifting of the clampdown on free debate is essential to a proper examination of what is wrong in the country, that very same principle applies here in Britain too.

We cannot properly investigate the reasons why Britain is in decline, why it is not functioning effectively, why it is so badly governed, why throughout our society there is so great a deterioration of standards and values — unless we opt once and for all for glasnost — 'openness', the lifting of taboos on the various subjects which now are not permitted to be freely discussed.

So we say: come off it, Mrs. Thatcher — stop trying to kid the world that Britain is an example to others in her 'freedoms', and stop trying to lecture others on the matter of 'freedom'. Put your own house in order. Get a grip of the forces in Britain that are stopping free debate. Get a grip of television. Get a grip of the press. Get a grip of the film industry. Get a grip of publishers and booksellers, and make them conform to your professed ideals of free expression and open debate.

Let there be no 'forbidden' subjects in this country. Let us lift the lid off the whole Pandora's box of censorship and suppression, of silence and secrecy, of taboos and no-go areas of controversy.

Let's have a British version of Glasnost, and then — and only then — can we talk to the rest of the world about 'freedom'!

JUNKETING ON THE RATES

OUR 'democratically-elected' town and city councillors love to present themselves as altruistic people, dedicated to public service and the interests of their local communities.

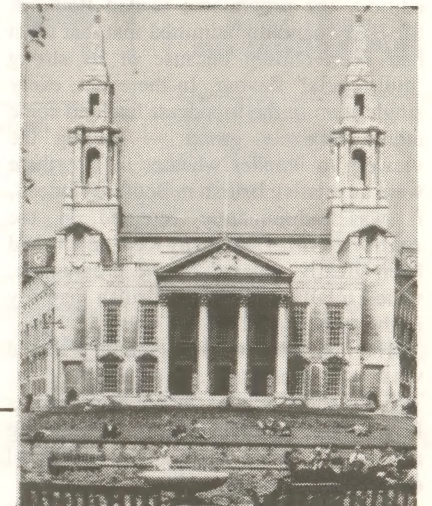

Some of them are, of course. But a great many pursue places on councils solely for what they can get out of it. One of their very favourite pastimes is to take part in the 'twinning' schemes whereby towns and cities in this country are paired up with others in Europe. These schemes enable councillors to enjoy regular junketing abroad, at the ratepayers' expense of course, while claiming that it is all in the cause of international goodwill!

One council that has just caused a lot of scandal in this regard is Leeds City Council. Leeds is 'twinning' with Dortmund, in West Germany. This month it is planned that a party will set off from Leeds to Dortmund for a week-long jamboree that will cost the local citizens a staggering £76,000!

As one councillor said, "You could repair hundreds of pensioners' homes for the cost of this outrageous perk."

Scotland

THE CORRECT RESPONSE TO THE SEPARATIST CHALLENGE

SCOTLAND, as most people know, is a desert in terms of support for Mrs. Thatcher and the Tories.

Conservative seats north of the border are now down to 10 in number, while Labour has 50. Meanwhile, the Scottish Nationalists, who want to break up the United Kingdom, have been growing in support.

One big issue that has harmed the Tories in Scotland, and helped the Nats, is the poll tax. Mrs. Thatcher's ridiculous decision to introduce the tax in Scotland a year ahead of the rest of the country has led to the very understandable belief that she is simply using the Scots as guinea pigs for an experiment which she fears may not work but which would not be disastrous to the Tories if it didn't, because they do not depend on Scotland for any large part of their electoral support.

This appalling policy has played right into the hands of the Scots Nats, who would of course ditch it by taking Scotland out of the United Kingdom.

Labour's tactics in Scotland have been predictable. Like all the other Westminster parties, instead of thinking of the long-term interests of Britain as a whole, they have thought solely of what best helps their immediate party interest; seeing the increasing popularity of the Scots Nats and worrying about the prospect of having the Nats take away some of their seats, as at Govan recently, they have donned some of the Scots Nat clothes, coming out in favour of the setting up of a Scottish Assembly in Edinburgh which will assume many of the powers presently held by the Westminster Parliament.

MAINTENANCE OF THE UNION TAKES PRIORITY OVER ALL

We have sometimes been asked what is our response to the clamour in Scotland for a local assembly. Do we support it or do we not?

Our reply is that our attitude to all questions affecting Scotland is based on our dedication to the maintenance of the Union and the question of what is best for the whole of the United Kingdom. Scotland's welfare is inseparably bound up with Britain's welfare. Anything which weakens Scotland's position as a member of the Union is bad for Scotland as well as being bad for the rest of us.

If it ever came to a point at which the Scottish people were determined either to opt for a local assembly within the United Kingdom or to leave the Kingdom altogether, we would with great reluctance support the setting up of a Scots assembly — as the lesser evil.

But we do not believe that such a Scottish Assembly is the true answer to the problems of Scotland — any more than regional assemblies are the answer to the problems of other parts of Britain.

All that these assemblies would achieve would be the reproduction, at great additional expense to the taxpayer, of the same pantomime of parliamentary government as we now have at Westminster, with its ongoing party war, its dishonest wheeling and dealing, its utter lack of true leadership and its paralysis in the face of the great national and regional problems that need to be tackled.

What indeed would be the use of establishing, in Scotland or elsewhere, miniature 'clones' of the political system that, on a larger scale, has failed Britain lamentably in the past and is certain to continue to fail her in the future?

What would be the use of putting into office just another collection of party politicians in various regional assemblies to add to the existing collection of politicians of the same type who occupy the seats at Westminster?

FRAUD

The separatists and the devolutionists talk about "bringing government nearer to the people." But where is the evidence that that will happen? Are the politicians who will sit in these regional assemblies any more likely to head the voice of the people than the present crop who sit in Westminster? Would a Scottish Parliament in Edinburgh heed the voice of the Scottish people over immigration and capital punishment, for instance, any more than the Parliament in London has heeded the voice of the British people as a whole over these issues? We think

SCOTLAND'S LABOUR GANG
A part of the 50-strong Scottish contingent of Labour MPs pose for a photograph. If their party ruled a Scottish Assembly it would make the same shambles of Scotland as it has made of Britain as a whole not, for the parties that would dominate Scottish affairs would be the same parties that have dominated British affairs — with the one addition of the Scots Nats — and there is no evidence that the Nats would go along with the people's wishes on these matters any more than the others have done. In fact the Nats are perfectly prepared to allow Asian and Afro-Caribbean immigration into Scotland and the setting up of a multi-racial society there, just as in England — which makes their posture as 'nationalists' a total fraud.

It is no answer to an obsolete and failed system of central government to set up regional governments on the same model.

It is no answer to the weakness and incompetence of the old-gang politicians of Westminster merely to transfer some of their powers and prerogatives to Scottish and other local politicians of the same type.

What is needed is a wholesale reform of the political system of Britain as a whole, and the recruitment of an entirely new type of political leader to govern the nation. That is the answer to the problems of Scotland — and to the problems of Britain as a whole.

Tory hypocrisy: a few examples

TORY TEARS are shed over train crashes at Clapham Junction, Purley and Glasgow, in which dozens died and scores were injured. At a moment's notice, the arch-crocodile was at the scene wiping away a tear and talking to survivors and rescuers in her 'caring' voice.

AT THE SAME TIME, Tory cuts have slashed British Rail's workforce to the point at which maintenance men and their supervisors work in a constant state of exhaustion and can't do a decent job.

ON THE ONE HAND, all decent people abhor child abuse, particularly of a sexual nature. The Tory 'News of the World' (December 6th) disclosed the horrific details of how twisted men indecently abused a young teenage girl.

ON THE OTHER HAND, the very same issue of the same newspaper displayed a near-nude photograph of a 13-year-old girl who readers were told had 'exciting' sexual fantasies. For whom was such a picture printed, if not the very perverts who regard children as sexual objects?

TORY DOGMA advocates that nationalised industries should be privatised to boost efficiency and profits and improve service to the customer.

BUT — all the recent privatisations have been of industries already in profit, including British Telecom and British Gas. And instead of benefits to the customer the prices of these services have risen massively.

THE PRIME MINISTER
Does she have a split mind?

IN A FREE SOCIETY, 'democracy' means that the majority will be supposed to prevail. So we would not call an election 'democratic' if 10 per-cent of voters voted for A and 48 per-cent for B, yet A won.

YET Tory Britain's 'democratic' Government has recently passed a housing act in which the views of the minority can prevail. If a local council wants to sell off its council housing estates to private landlords, the new law states that a referendum must be conducted among the tenants involved. Votes in favour of selling to a private landlord may be far fewer than those against, but those tenants not voting will be deemed to have voted 'for', so that a majority of 'antis' can be defeated by a minority of 'pros'!

ON THE ONE HAND, Mrs. Thatcher has made a habit of making regular declarations of her abhorrence of terrorism and of the need for governments to get tougher with terrorists.

ON THE OTHER HAND, the same lady has recently called for the release of jailed African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela, who has a record of terrorism as gruesome as practically any man living in the world today!

ON THE ONE HAND, psychiatrists define schizophrenia as an illness involving the perception of contradictory realities in the one mind.

ON THE OTHER HAND, this is precisely the state of affairs existing in the Tory mind, with the schizophrenic-in-chief changing her hairstyle, her voice and her policies as the mood takes her. Come in, the men with the white coats!

Soccer hooliganism: ID card scheme sidetracks the issue

Soccer hooligans, of the type pictured on the right, are a natural product of modern British society.

Mrs. Thatcher's much heralded identity card scheme will not stop them. It will simply cause enormous problems at the turnstiles of football grounds, and it will cost football clubs a great deal of money — for almost no benefit!

All it is really is a stunt, aimed to give the impression that the Government is 'doing something' about the hooligan problem while in fact it is doing nothing. It is doing nothing to bring order and discipline to British society and British youth. Until it does, the hooliganism will continue. ID cards will solve nothing!

R.L. WHITMORE

Sir, — Your summary of the appalling record of the present Government (page 2 last month) was apposite. What I find noticeable is that Tories like to put across the idea that they have been resolute in grasping certain 'nettles', bringing sweeping change in areas where sweeping change is needed. In fact, they have only grasped the very minor nettles, leaving the most important ones untouched — for instance the nettle of immigration, the nettle of capital punishment, the nettle of an irresponsible mass media, the nettle of money poured away in aid to an ungrateful Third World. It is in these areas that a revolution in national policy is really called for, but here the Government has left things exactly as they are.

W.S. CROUCH
Whitby, Yorks.

Sir, — If Moslem voters are 2 million, the whole non-white population must be at least 6 million!

B. ABBOTT

Shrewsbury, Shrops.

Sir, — It was interesting to note that in the recent council by-election in Tower Hamlets, in which the BNP candidate came third behind the SLD and Labour candidates, some nationalist supporters voted SLD to keep Labour out. This, they believed, was better than a wasted BNP vote.

It now transpires, according to the London Evening Standard, that the SLD-controlled council in Tower Hamlets is to recruit teachers from Bangladesh to alleviate the teacher shortage in schools in the area.

So it seems that by voting 'tactically' some people in Tower Hamlets have shown that they would prefer the SLD to bring in non-white immigrants than Labour to do so!

When will these people learn that only by voting for the BNP will they bring nearer the day when non-white immigration is finally stopped? Only by voting for us will they ever stand a chance of getting a government that has their interests at heart.

D. ELLIS

Sir, — I usually agree with your articles and views 100 per-cent but I do not agree with you over Judge Pickles.

He has been quite tough in the past, although at times controversial.

He sentenced the girl mentioned in your report because she refused to give evidence against her boyfriend and wasted the court's time after saying she would testify.

On TV the girl certainly did not give the impression of being a 'shrinking violet'. Also, her boyfriend was a Rastafarian, so I think the young lady should not get any sympathy from us — she is a traitor to her race.

H. TANDY
Kings Lynn, Norfolk

Sir, — I half expected to read in the article on the 'Chunnel' that completion would mean a continuous rail link from Scotland to Siberia, where 'dissidents' could be sent in cattle trucks.

With Maggie (formerly called the 'Iron Lady') and Uncle Gorby having such long and friendly chats, the idea that this could happen is perhaps not a psychotic dream.

My fellow Americans are not safe either. With Trilateralist President Bush also greeting Gorby, American 'dissidents' could disappear forever in the wasteland of Siberia via the Aleutian Chain (of small islands from Alaska to within a few miles of Soviet territory).

I trust Gorbachev and Raisa like I trust a viper and its mate!

SPREADING THE WORD

Facts and views the media try to suppress

BRITAIN TODAY is like a country under enemy occupation. News and opinions that are considered 'dangerous' to the occupying power are rigorously suppressed by the established communications media: the press, broadcasting and the motion picture and publishing industries. A particularly important example of this is the organised black-out of the voice of white native British protest against alien immigration and the multi-racial society that our political masters have forced upon us. Another matter for suppression is public discussion of the power and influence wielded in our society by persons and pressure groups of alien origin not owing first loyalty to the British Nation. Free debate of these matters is carefully excluded from TV, radio and the columns of the newspapers.

In addition to these 'gags' by the media, laws have been passed through parliament whose purpose has been to silence ordinary British people who wish to speak out on such subjects as these we have mentioned. These laws have been presented as measures to combat 'racial hatred'; in reality they are laws aimed at silencing patriotic Britons in their resistance to the alien take-over of this country.

Nevertheless, resistance to the take-over is growing, and those leading that resistance refuse to be silenced. The British National Party, which is gradually becoming the main force of patriotic resistance in Britain, is building its own communications network for reaching, informing and rallying the British people. Available through this network are books, periodicals, leaflets, posters, stickers and tape recordings, all of which convey vital information now being hidden from the people by the big battalions of the mass media. In these pages we are advertising the items that are available. Do your bit for Britain by obtaining them and helping spread the message to others!

UNEMPLOYMENT
Have you been thrown on the scrapheap by foreign imports?

IS IT NOT insanity that there are 2½ million people unemployed in Britain while we import £15 billion worth of manufactured goods a year?

Today we buy from abroad more than half our motor vehicles, most of our larger civil aircraft, a large portion of our ships, most of our children's toys, most of our domestic electrical goods, computers and office machinery, nearly all of our photographic and optical equipment, a great deal of our industrial machinery and many of our clothes.

Now we even buy foreign coal — while we lay off miners in South Wales, Scotland, Yorkshire and elsewhere.

All these items could be produced in Britain, guaranteeing employment for all. But successive governments, whether Tory or Labour, refuse to adopt such a policy.

Our party is pledged to change this policy. We aim to put up barriers against all imports of goods that we have the resources and the skills to produce in Britain.

And by doing this we shall ensure that every British worker will have a job.

Violent crime in Britain
THE HORRIFYING TRUTH

Recent statistics on the rate of violent crime in Britain are shocking. In 1987, there were 100,000 violent crimes in Britain. This includes muggings, rapes, robberies, burglaries, and other violent attacks on defenceless people.

These crimes are a major problem for the British people. They are a threat to our safety and our way of life. They are a threat to our freedom and our rights.

Our party is pledged to change this situation. We aim to put up barriers against all imports of goods that we have the resources and the skills to produce in Britain.

THE DEAD AND THE LIVING

The pictures on the left show a street in South London. It was once a busy street, but now it is a dead street. The houses are empty, the shops are closed, and the street is deserted.

This is the result of the multi-racial experiment that has failed. It has led to the destruction of our communities and the loss of our way of life.

Our party is pledged to change this situation. We aim to put up barriers against all imports of goods that we have the resources and the skills to produce in Britain.

London City Council is one of the many local authorities in Britain that have adopted a multi-racial policy. This policy is based on the idea that all races should be treated equally.

Our party is pledged to change this situation. We aim to put up barriers against all imports of goods that we have the resources and the skills to produce in Britain.

Immigration: the time to say STOP!

DO YOU THINK...

- That the Government is not doing nearly enough to control the numbers of immigrants coming into this country (still at least 90,000 a year)?
- That the multi-racial experiment is not working?
- That the government should launch a scheme for the repatriation of immigrants to their homelands — with generous resettlement grants and fares paid — as a solution to the race problem and an alternative to race conflict in Britain?

THIS SCENE OF DESTRUCTION AND DESTRUCTION IS TYPICAL OF MANY UP AND DOWN OUR COUNTRY. IT IS THE LEGACY OF MANY YEARS OF MISGOVERNMENT — NOT ONLY BY THE TORIES BUT BY LABOUR AS WELL. THEY HAVE REDUCED MANY OF OUR ONCE FINEST LANDS TO NOTHING BUT A MASS OF CONCRETE AND BRICK. THE BUILDING INDUSTRY HAS COLLAPSED, THE COUNTRY IS IN A STATE OF DESTRUCTION, THE COUNTRY IS IN A STATE OF DESTRUCTION, THE COUNTRY IS IN A STATE OF DESTRUCTION.

Isherwood) 30p. Shows that racial integration is not ordained by Christianity but that the reverse is true. 1970, 16pp. THE LEMMING FOLK (James Gibb Stewart) £7.95. A witty and factual examination of current attitudes and intellectual fashion that are threatening our future. 1980, 246pp. THE GRAND DESIGN (Douglas Reed) £2.00. A behind-the-scenes look at modern world history. 1977, 45pp. THE DISPOSSESSED MAJORITY (Wilmot Robertson) £7.50. This book has attracted worldwide attention, dealing as it does with racial problems in America — and not just simply the black-white situation. 2nd edition 1981, 613pp. RACE AND REASON (Carleton Putnam) £4.00. A plain, unemotional account of the race issue that has been an invaluable contribution to the debate ever since it was first published. 1961 (rep. 1977), 125pp. RACE AND REALITY (Carleton Putnam) £4.00. A companion volume and supplement to Race and Reason, showing how the truth about the race issue has been suppressed by interested parties. 1967 (rep. 1977), 192pp. VENTILATIONS (Wilmot Robertson) £4.50. The sequel to the same author's widely acclaimed The Dispossessed Majority. Revised edition 1982, 113pp. THE GLOBAL MANIPULATORS (Robert Eringer) £2.50. While the author repudiates any conspiratorial view of world events, he still provides a comprehensive exposure of the organisation and influence of the Bilderberg Group and the Trilateral Commission. 1980, 95pp. PEACE STUDIES IN OUR SCHOOLS: PROPAGANDA FOR DEFENCELESSNESS (John Marks) £2.95. An important book on a major current educational scandal: the indoctrination of schoolchildren by pacifist and unilateralist 'educationalists'. This topical and factual study makes it plain that we are not simply confronted with odd teachers here and there abusing their positions but with a whole network of organisations and institutions, some publicly funded, co-ordinating their attack on young people's minds. 1984, 63pp. THE ZIONIST CONNECTION (Alfred M. Lilienthal) £13.00. The second edition of a sensational exposure by a non-Zionist Jew of Zionist power politics. 1982, 904pp. TREASON AT WESTMINSTER (Dr. Kitty Little) 50p. Text of a memorandum to the Royal Commission on Criminal Procedure entitled: Infiltration of the government by members of subversive or criminal organisations for the purpose of furthering the interests of those organisations. 1979, 24pp. A WORLD COUP D'ETAT IS PLANNED (Dr. Kitty Little) 50p. Updates the above, giving details of the destructive effects of treaties foisted on Britain. 1984,

BNP plans for county council elections, May 4th

REGULAR READERS will know that it is not at present the policy of the British National Party to make any large-scale commitment of resources to the fighting of elections: that belongs to a later phase of its development. Nevertheless, it does regularly conduct small pilot campaigns in the electoral field. This is an important aspect of party work for a number of reasons. Firstly, it enables us to 'test the water' to see if there is any discernible swing in electoral support towards nationalist parties: if these limited campaigns establish that there is, then of course the party will be encouraged to make a larger commitment to the fighting of elections.

In addition, these campaigns do provide the party's units with useful training, and they also provide an experimental ground in which various approaches in electoral publicity and propaganda can be tried out.

Not least, they qualify the party for acceptance, under the Representation of the People Act, of the right to hire publicly owned meeting premises, whereas on other occasions nationalist parties find great difficulty in this regard.

On May 4th, the party will be contesting three local government seats, in Leicester, Norwich and Epping Forest.

The BNP East Midlands Regional Organiser, John Peacock, will be standing in the New Parks division of Leicester in the elections to Leicester-shire County Council. A party rally is scheduled to be held in support of his candidature on April 22nd.

Norwich BNP Organiser Richard Heaton is standing for the Eaton division of Norwich in the elections to Norfolk County Council.

In the Epping Forest area Robert Jarvis will be standing in the St. John's ward of Loughton in the elections to Essex County Council. The party will be holding a public rally in Loughton in support of Mr. Jarvis's candidature.

Full reports of both the Leicester and Loughton rallies will be given in British Nationalist next month.

British Nationalist wishes the very best of luck to the three candidates and we hope that all party supporters in their respective areas will make every possible effort to help them in their campaigns. This issue will appear during the last week of the run-up period to the elections. Anyone wishing to give practical help (including financial help) should write to the Leicester, Norwich or Epping Forest party addresses listed on the right-hand side of this page.

As for the City, it will have to be prohibited from exporting British money abroad solely for its own private profit. Instead, its financial expertise must be harnessed to a great plan of national industrial reconstruction in which the profits of British economic activity will be ploughed back into Britain.

At the same time, we must stop sectors of the economy here in this country being bought up by foreign capital — to the point at which, eventually, all wealth and resources in Britain are British-owned, and our economy is not sucked dry by massive sums of money going out of the country each year in the form of profits on foreign investments.

You are invited to join a housing co-operative. Need help? Want to help? Write to: 'Housing', BM Box 3958, London WC1N 3XX.

without the standard Tory attitudes of 'laissez-faire', for these are as ruinous as the outright pacifism of the left.

What is needed is a revolution in our whole national outlook.

For a start, a climate must be restored in which women are once again encouraged, and proud, to produce and raise ample and healthy offspring. Motherhood must once again be publicly honoured and supported.

It is then for government to ensure that the entire male population is brought up from earliest childhood in the right martial spirit, grounded in love of race and nation and eager to do its part in defending these things.

As goes without saying, military service will then have to be made universal and compulsory for Britain's young men.

But all of this will require an authoritative new system of national leadership. The Tories and their Westminster rivals have made it perfectly plain that none of these necessary changes will come from them.

A BIGGER AND BETTER PAPER

With this month's issue, we are carrying out, ahead of the original schedule, our plan to enlarge British Nationalist to eight pages. We are doing this in response to an enthusiastic demand from our readers and supporters that we should achieve the enlargement as soon as possible.

We have been able to do this as a result of a rationalisation of work schedules involving several party duties, as a result of which those engaged on the work of production of the paper are relieved of other time-consuming tasks and are also reinforced in number by the bringing in of new contributors.

Henceforth, British Nationalist will contain, as a general rule, five pages of comment on current issues, two pages of advertisements and one page of internal news from the British National Party. The latter news, however, may sometimes be extended so as to occupy part of a further page, with some corresponding reduction of current-affairs comment. Even in this event, however, items of the latter nature will be far more numerous than in the past.

We are also, as stated last month, endeavouring to make articles shorter and with greater illustration. This will not preclude the occasional longer article when it is thought that this is warranted.

The enlarged size of the paper will necessitate an increase in price to 25p per copy. For new subscription and bulk rates, would readers please refer to page eight.

NATIONALIST CAMP: On the weekend of May 13th-14th there will be a Nationalist Spring Camp in the Midlands area. It will be open to all British Nationalists. For details, contact: East Midlands BNP, PO Box 148, Leicester LE3 2YD.

NEW BUILDING FUND: £3,447.10 NEEDED!

Contributions over the past month to the BNP New Building Fund have totalled £438.00. This is a great improvement, and we thank all those who have contributed. Let us try in May to do even better. A lot of money must still be raised to meet our target.

Please send all contributions to New Building Fund, PO Box 117, Welling, Kent DA16 3DW. Please give generously!
